Jake: Hey Mr. Gordon I am doing okay I guess I just have been feeling really down and depressed for the last couple of months. Depressed doesn't really explain completely how I feel but is a major factor. It is very hard to verbalize how I feel which makes it very frustrating. I have never been a really open person but feel as though I can trust you, and am really looking forward to ending this. After listening to your latest Joe Rogan experience with your patient, I feel share many of the same symptoms he did and was thrilled to see your work, be able to work for him which gave me a true sense hope. Thanks for all your help so far and really look forward to ending this which I am confident we can.

Gordon: Jake, Consider this our Trust Line.. If there is something that comes up and you to share dump it here as you did. The injections work fast but the tablets work just as well most of the time. I have another medication that I have not been using since it costs so much but I just negotiated a price break for HCG. If we need it it will be available in January.

Jake: Dr. Gordon the past week has felt like an epiphany, I have not felt this good in at least 3 years. I am absolutely thrilled; I cannot thank you enough! I feel like a person I had long forgotten about and thought I would never see again. I am so happy to finally be able to truly enjoy what life has to offer.

Gordon: Jake you must thank your parent first for their love of you and their never ending faith in HOPE. Although, I am very saddened by the resistance of the medical community to accept the science behind what we have to offer, I respectfully request that you write a paragraph for me about your past and then your protocol and the results. It will help. I want to place you into our TBI family too. I am in Thailand working on a Hospital project to address much of what I do - HRT.
